Grammar Appendix

Significa principalmente "ser" o "estar". Se utiliza para describir cosas, expresar hechos generales e indicar la edad. En la conversación, am, is y are se suelen contraer con el pronombre personal sujeto. I'm in Year 8. (Estoy en octavo.)

En negativa se añade la partícula not a todas las formas del verbo to be o la contracción n't a is y are (isn't y aren't), pero no a am.

I'm not at school. (No estoy en el colegio.)

Laura isn't in my class. (Laura no está en mi clase.)

My notebooks aren't in my schoolbag. (Mis cuadernos no están en mi mochila.)

En interrogativa se invierte el orden del sujeto y el verbo. Las respuestas breves se forman con el pronombre personal sujeto y el verbo to be, sin contraer en afirmativa o contraído en negativa.

Is your teacher in the classroom? Yes, she is. / No, she isn't. (¿Tu profesora está en la clase? Sí. / No.)

This – este, esta, esto

That – ese, esa, eso o aquel, aquella, aquello

These – estos, estas

Those – esos, esas o aquellos, aquellas

Indican si el sustantivo al que se refieren está cerca o lejos del hablante. Concuerdan con el sustantivo solo en número (singular / plural), mientras que en castellano también concuerdan en género (masculino / femenino).

Cuando son pronombres van solos.

That is my schoolbag. (Aquella es mi mochila.)

These are your pens. (Estos son tus bolígrafos.)

Funcionan como adjetivos cuando van delante de un sustantivo. En este caso, this y that no conservan los significados de "esto", "eso" o "aquel".

This book is good. (Este libro es bueno.)

Those students are in Year 9. (Esos alumnos están en noveno.)
